The republican national ticket is not regarded as in such straits. Effect of Kern's Nomination.

The first question you probably will ask is, "Has the nomination of John W. Kern for the fact that I and my forces were for the vice presidency brought great adticket?" Mr. Kern's nomination is declared to have been the work of Mr. Thomas Taggart, who saw in Mr. Kern an obstacle to his coming to the Senate in case a landslide should give the democrats the legislature. Mr. Kern's association with Mr. Taggart will not help him, it is said, with the element of citizenship opposed to Mr.

Taggart. 'Will the resentment of republicans the treatment accorded Vice against President Fairbanks be manifested at the polls?" My information also answers that question in the negative. There is no loubt that right after the Chicago convention there was much bitterness among republicans here, and there were some ugly mutterings; but that feeling is wearing off and it is confidently predicted that will have disappeared entirely by elec-

He said the plans have been under consideration for some time, and but for a few minor changes are ready to carry into effect. He informed the Commissioner that specifications will be prepared in a few days and the actual work of construction will not be delayed.

Maj. Morrow said today that the Commissioners hope the work will be completed by March of next, and be in readiness for the many inauguration visitors, but this accomplishment is considered improbable. Considerable has to be done and it is feared the inauguration date is too near at hand. It was pointed out that had Congress

GIRL GIVES BACK HIS RING

Sends Him in Basement, Where RENEGADES AND OUTCASTS Three Men Seize Him.

REVOLVER POINTED AT HIM

Despite Resistance, Is Daubed With Sticky Stuff From Head to Feot. Then Freed to Seek Doctor.

"I was to have been married in New York, and had given the lady a ring. Last night when I went to the house she asked me to enter through the basement door. This was something unusual. "After she had returned the ring the three men grabbed me, dragged me into the house, tied my hands-one of them pointing a revolver at me-and then applied the tar." This was his epitomization of an unexpected clima to his love affairs told last night by F. E. Bliss, jr., of Washington, to the doctor to whom he applied to strip him of a coat of tar which extended from his head to his heels. Bliss is a member of the firm of Bliss, Albrect & Co., paper rulers, with offices in the Hutchins building, 10th and D streets northwest. The young man had his uncomfortable experience last night between 9 and 10 o'clock, at 1317 Kenyon street, the home of the woman who, he stated, was to have become his wife. He was awed into submission, he declared, by the Following the indignity Bliss went to the office of Dr. Abraham D. Blitz and had the coat of tar removed.

had relieved him of the tar. Warrants Sworn Out.

Detective Phillips and Precinct Detect

No action was taken until today. Then Bliss swore out a warrant for his alleged assailants, giving their names as Charles Marthinson, Henry C. Cole and James L. White. He made no effort to implicate the woman in the proceedings.

It is said that Bliss was literally dragged from the front basement door to the room in which he was given the coat, of He made a desperate resistance, bu did not make an outcry, and the affair caused no excitement in the vicinity of the Kenyon' street house. It was dark when the young man emerged from the house and started in the direction of Capitol Hill.

The first known of the affair by the police was when the two detectives saw ion. Bliss on East Capitol street about 10 o'clock looking for a physician. His face was covered with tar. His appearance rightened several ladies who were seated efore their homes on East Capitol street when he appeared there in a runabout. Bliss was there to find Dr. Richard Kingsman, his family physician. As that loctor was out of the city he went to the house of Dr. Edwin Lothrop, 705 East Capitol street. "Is the doctor in?" he called from his runabout to Mrs. Lothrop and friends, who were seated in front of the house. Told the physician was not at home Bliss asked where he could find another physician. Mrs. Lothrop thought it strange that the man whom she supposed to be a negro had not left his runabout and come to the door. One of her friends suggested probably his horse would not stand. The wife of the physicians walked to the curb. It was not until she saw his hands that she realized he was a white man. "I'm pretty badly done up," the man in the runabout told her. She advised him to go to the office of Dr. A. D. Butz, 701 East Capitol street. "And of all the sights I ever saw." Dr.

Butz said, "that was the worst." Physician Removes Tar. As soon as the young man told the physician what had happened to him the latter invited him in, taking him to the bathroom on the upper floor, realizing he had a difficult job ahead of him. The physician assisted Bliss to remove his clothing, and soon saw that the coating of tar was from his head to his feet. "How did you ever get all that tar or you?" was the physician's query. It seemed rather ludicrous to the physician, but Mr. Bliss did not appreciate the fact that he was the victim of practical jokers. He was suffering from his experience at the Kenyon street house, and was not in any humor to look lightly upon the affair. His wrists showed where the rope had done the damage, and the skin was somewhat inflamed.

Bliss told his story to the physician, and further explained that after the tar had been applied the rope was removed from his wrists and he was permitted to leave the house. From there he drove all the way to Capitol Hill to find Dr. Kingsman, realizing his condition was possibly dangerous and that he would be unable to remove all the tar from his body. His explanation having been made, the physician invited him to the bathroom and proceeded with the work of making the young man comfortable. He was un able to use preparations which would have removed the tar without any difficulty, realizing the skin was already tender and that serious results might follow. For fully one hour the physician labored over the tarred man and finally said
